The Internet offers access to many valuable local, national, and international sources of information. However, some information found on the Internet may be inaccurate, incomplete, dated, or offensive to some individuals. A good information consumer must evaluate the validity and appropriateness of information found.

Choosing and Evaluating Sources

Library patrons use the Internet at their own risk The Internet is a series of communication linkages leading to a highly diverse array of information content. In choosing sources to link to from its home pages, the Library follows its materials selection guidelines. Beyond this, the Library is not responsible for the content of the Internet, changes in content of the sources to which the Library home pages link, or for the content of sources accessed through secondary links. In an effort to assist its users, the Library has created websites for the general population, for teens, and for children to help guide them to sources that are accurate, complete, and current and that provide them with a wealth of information on the local, national, and global level. In addition, the Library provides training for members of the public to assist them in using the Internet in a safe, effective, and efficient manner. Finally, as set forth in greater detail below, in accordance with The Children's Internet Protection Act ("CIPA") the Library has implemented "technology protection measures" (i.e., software filtering) on all of its Internet-accessible computers in the children's and teen areas.

Filtering

As required by The Children's Internet Protection Act ("CIPA"), in order to remain eligible for certain federal funding, the Library has implemented software filtering on all of its Internet-accessible computers in the children's and teen areas. The software installed on Internet-accessible computers at the Library protects against access to visual depictions of obscenity, child pornography, and, in the case of persons under the age of 17 years, materials that are "harmful to minors." Users should be aware, however, that all currently available filtering software results in a degree of both "underblocking" (i.e., permitting access to certain material that falls within the foregoing categories) and "overblocking" (i.e., denying access to certain constitutionally protected material that does not fall within the foregoing categories). The Library has attempted to select filtering software that best complies with CIPA while providing Library users with the broadest possible access to constitutionally protected speech and information. The Library cannot and does not guarantee that the filtering software will block all obscenity, child pornography, or materials that are harmful to minors. Nor can the Library guarantee that the filtering software will not restrict access to sites that may have legitimate research or other value.

Unblocking Filters

The Library requests that only users of the age of seventeen or older may complete the following steps in order to obtain assistance with unblocking filters:

- Contact the Library Director or as such other staff member as the Library shall designate from time to time, to locate a computer that has unfiltered Internet access;
- Any user who is seventeen (17) years of age or older may request to disable the filtering software only within the adult section of the library in order to obtain unfiltered Internet access for bona fide research or other lawful purpose.

As a result of the limited resources available for provision of public access to the Internet, the Library may set limits, for example, on use of large files of still or moving images or sound, or on downloading files in any medium. The Library also reserves the right to limit the amount of time an individual user can devote to a single session. The public must comply with all applicable federal, state, and local laws, including laws governing the transmission and dissemination of information while accessing the Internet, and with all Library policies and procedures.

Users may not:

- ❖ Use the network to make unauthorized entry into other computational, informational or communication services or resources.
- ❖ Distribute unsolicited advertising.
- ❖ Invade the privacy of others.
- ❖ Make any attempt to damage computer equipment or software.
- ❖ Engage in any activity that is harassing or defamatory.
- ❖ Use the Internet for any illegal activity, including violation of copyright or other rights of third parties, or in a manner inconsistent with the Library's tax-exempt status or its proper operation.

Violations may result in loss of access. Unlawful activities will be dealt with in an appropriate manner.

However, The Mount Olive Public Library will not release information on the use of specific Internet resources by members of the public except as required by law or necessary for the proper operation of the Library.
